General Information

Old Station Yard occupies a prominent gateway position to the northern entrance to Jedburgh.

Jedburgh is a traditional market town with a population of approximately 4,000. The town is steeped in history with a great many historic attractions including the 12th Century Augustinian Abbey, Jedburgh Jail and Museum, Mary Queen of Scots house. Its historic setting attracts a significant level of seasonal tourist trade. The town also benefits from a good range of shopping facilities with a blend of crafts, antique and artisan retail outlets.

Jedburgh is situated on the southern fringe of the Scottish Borders close to Jed Water a tributary of the River Teviot, approximately 10 miles to the north of the border with England and benefits from good road links to the principal Borders towns and a national road network via the A68 trunk road. Newcastle airport is approximately 52 miles south while Edinburgh airport lies around 54 miles north.

Description

A factory together with ancillary accommodation and concrete yard occupying a regular shaped site of approximately 1.07 acre.

The factory is a twin span concrete portal frame building. Roofs are clad in corrugated fibre cement sheeting with preformed reinforced concrete valley and eaves guttering. External walls are of cavity brick construction rendered to the east and west elevations with timber panelling to the north and south gables. The factory has a solid concrete floor throughout

To the west there is a flat roofed extension of cavity construction providing ancillary office accommodation. There is a sizeable concrete surfaced yard to the north and south. The site is bounded by two metre high post and rail fencing to the north, east and west.

Accommodation

A ten bay factory building complete with two vehicular access roller shutter doors to each gable end and a further vehicular access door to the east elevation.

Ancillary accommodation to the west comprising: General office, manager’s office, staff room and WCs.
